Data sharing: understanding our publicly available policy

AUTHORSERVICES
Supporting Taylor & Francis authors

Taylor & Francis Group
an informa business

- Submitting your article to a Taylor & Francis, Routledge or Cogent OA journal
- A data set is associated with your paper

The example below shows the steps you'll need to follow for journals with a publicly available data policy

Choose a journal you want to submit your paper to Check the data sharing policy in the journal's Instructions for Authors

Journal has a publicly available data policy. Data sharing is mandated for this journal.

Please note that data should only be shared if it is ethically correct to do so, where this does not violate the protection of human subjects, or other valid ethical, privacy, or security concerns

Check: has data associated with the article been deposited in a suitable repository?

If the journal has double-blind peer review, you'll need a repository with an option to preserve your anonymity

No

Pause your submission and upload data into a suitable repository

Read advice on selecting a repository

Yes

Check: is data freely available?

No

Pause your submission and make the data open under an appropriate license

Yes

Provide the DOI, reserved DOI, or other persistent identifier in the peer review system when prompted

Ensure you include a data availability statement with your submission

Data availability statement templates are available on Author Services

Ensure associated data sets have been cited in the body of the paper and the reference list

Read guidance on citing data

Finalize your submission and, when you're ready, submit your paper
